Access to Information on the Environment

European Communities (Access to Information on the Environment Regulations) 2007 to 2014. (S.I. No. 113 of 2007, S.I. No. 683 of 2011 & S.I. No. 815 of 2014)

The Access to Information on the Environment (AIE) Regulations give you the right to access environmental information held by or for the EPA or a other public authority. A request for such information will normally be made as soon as possible but at the latest one month from the date of receipt of the request.

What can I ask for?

You can ask for environmental information held by or for the EPA. Environmental information is defined as the AIE Regulations and comprises what is available under the AIE Regulations.

What is the definition of Environmental Information?

Environmental information can be held in any material form (including written, visual, sound or electronic) and is defined as follows:

- the plans of the activities of the environment, such as air and atmosphere, soil and land, landscape and seas (including wetlands), noise and other noise, biological diversity and ecosystems, including genetically modified organisms and the interaction among these elements;
- statistics, such as substances, energy, noise, radiation or waste, including radioactive waste, emissions, and other releases into the environment, affecting or likely to affect the elements of the environment;
- reports on the implementation of environmental legislation;
- reports on the implementation of environmental legislation;
