The Working Party thanked Mr. Bernhard Mueller (Germany) for his contribution to the UNECE PPP work as co-Chairperson of the Team of Specialists on PPPs (TOS PPP).

IV. Contribution of the UNECE's People-first PPP work to the UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) (Agenda item 3)

Documentation:

Standard on a Zero Tolerance approach to Corruption in PPP Procurement (ECE/CECI/WP/PPP/2017/4);

Draft declaration on a Zero Tolerance approach to corruption on People-first PPPs (ECE/CECI/WP/PPP/2017/CRP.3);

Draft revised Guiding Principles on People-first PPPs for the SDGs (ECE/CECI/WP/PPP/2017/CRP.1);

Draft guidelines for aid agencies in support to people-first PPPs (ECE/CECI/WP/PPP/2017/CRP.13).

A. Mobilising the Member States' PPP Units behind the UN SDGs

5. The participants appreciated the quality of the interventions made by the panellists from PPP units and infrastructure agencies from twenty countries across all regions, which considered the following questions:

(a) How can we improve PPP to make it a more “fit for purpose” vehicle for the UN development agenda?

(b) Where and how do you see changes in the way PPP is done in your country that gives ground for optimism?

(c) Do the UN SDGs need the PPP units to give their collective voice in support? How can practically this support be expressed?

(d) What do countries need from national aid agencies to make people first projects a reality?

(e) Can you give examples of projects – either at the planning state or operational – which can demonstrate people first PPPs? and

(f) How can countries cooperate better in “regional masterplans” programmes? What is the role for organisations such as the UNECE to harmonise practices, institutions etc. that can facilitate these regional masterplans?

6. Participants agreed that an expert network composed of representatives from PPP units and infrastructure agencies might be created in support of the UN SDGs.

B. How can the national aid agencies contribute to transformational, people-first PPP projects and the UN SDGs

7. The participants listened with appreciation to the experiences shared by the panellists on the role of national aid agencies in promoting people-first PPP projects and the UN SDGs, more specifically on:

(a) How can international aid agencies contribute to supporting people-first PPPs in low and middle-income countries?

(b) What are the best practice models for cooperation between the aid agencies, the private sector and host governments and entities? and

(c) What are the main risks involved in aid agencies in support of PPPs and how can they be overcome?

8. Delegates recognised the important role played by national aid agencies in supporting low and middle income countries with their infrastructure needs, and appreciated the draft guidelines being prepared by the UNECE for aid agencies in their support of people-first PPPs.

C. Making PPPs “fit for purpose” for the UN SDGs and putting people first: the role of the ZTC and the guiding principles

9. Delegates welcomed the concept of “people-first”, and its emphasis on sustainability, community development and bottom-up as well as top down approaches. Participants agreed that the guiding principles provide a useful roadmap for governments, especially in low and middle income countries, where the PPP challenges are greater, to guide their policies on infrastructure and they supported a focus on increased access to essential services, equity, enhanced efficiency, improved project economic effectiveness, and replicability and scalability of projects.

10. Participants acknowledged that PPPs are sometimes rightly criticised for not having sufficient accountability to citizens and for not providing them with enough information on the financial aspects of the agreement. Guiding principles are very important tools that allow a PPP contract to be used for a considerable set of objectives, including poverty eradication and sustainable development. At the same time, delegates invited the secretariat to incorporate comments made on the draft and to consult with individual governments and their PPP units to provide reviews of individual chapters and principles contained in the document. They further asked the secretariat to send the document to the other Regional Commissions for review.

11. The second panel discussed the UNECE standard on a Zero Tolerance Approach to Corruption in PPP Procurement (ZTC) and the accompanying draft declaration designed to facilitate implementation.

12. Participants agreed that the subject matter of this standard was highly topical and the recommendations contained in the standard needed to be implemented. They also recognised the importance of effective implementation in countries and considered that the declaration was a very effective tool to achieve this.

13. The secretariat thanked the panellists who participated in the discussion and informed the Working Party that the conclusions and recommendations on the revised guiding principles on good governance in people-first PPPs for the SDGs, the ZTC standard and declaration would be discussed under agenda item 5.

V. Working with China on the Belt and Road initiative in PPPs to create a “win-win” (Agenda item 4)

Documentation:

Promoting People-first PPPs for the Belt and Road initiative and the UN SDGs (ECE/CECI/WP/PPP/2017/CRP.2)

14. The chairperson introduced the agenda item by referring to a conference room paper prepared by the secretariat (ECE/CECI/WP/PPP/2017/CRP.2), which outlines the proposed capacity building initiative for countries along the Belt and Road initiative following the signing of a Memorandum of Understanding between the UNECE and China on 14 May 2017.

15. Participants listened with appreciation to the presentations by the panellists on this initiative, and heard expressions for support from prospecting participating countries, including Belarus, Kyrgyzstan, Morocco, the Russian Federation, Tajikistan, Ukraine and Uzbekistan.

VI. Review of the PPP work since the eighth and final session of the Team of Specialists on PPPs on 20-21 October 2016 (Agenda item 5)

A. UNECE International PPP Centre of Excellence (ICoE)

16. The secretariat informed the Working Party that the emphasis of the UNECE’s PPP work continued to be on adopting a new approach to PPPs to make them fit for purpose for the UN SDGs. “People-first PPPs” is the phrase used in remodelling the PPP concept from a purely “value for money” tool to a tool, based upon effective and replicable projects, that also support social and environmental benefits such as increased access to essential services, equity, resilience, a green sustainable economy, and poverty alleviation.

17. Reporting on the International Specialist Centres, the secretariat reiterated the crucial role that they play in backstopping the work on PPP standards by providing the empirical evidence by collecting international PPP best practices and case studies, and to act as transmission belts of standards and other outputs. The following Specialist Centres were established since the eighth and final session of the TOS PPP:

(a) Portugal: International Specialist Centre of Excellence in PPPs in water and sanitation in Lisbon with the support of the Ministry of Environment of Portugal; and

(b) Lebanon: International Specialist Centre of Excellence on PPPs in ports hosted by the Higher Council for Privatization and PPP in Beirut under the auspices of the Office of the Prime Minister of Lebanon.

Conclusion 2017 – 5.1

The Working Party commended the progress as reported by the secretariat on the work of the UNECE International PPP Centre of Excellence and agreed to continue its work on the development of international PPP standards and recommendations that support the UN Sustainable Development Goals.

Conclusion 2017 – 5.2

The Working Party congratulated the country-hosted Specialist Centres for their work in the development of the best practice guides and case studies that provide the basis for the development of international PPP standards, as well as the supporting role that the Centres in China, France, Japan, Lebanon, Portugal and Spain play in the standard-development process by working closely with the international Project Teams. The Working Party encouraged the Specialist Centres to give priority to the areas identified by the member States in support of the Sustainable Development Goals. The Working Party also took note with appreciation of the information documents prepared by the Centre in France, and requested the Bureau to make a recommendation on their use. It also invited the Centres to improve the coordination with other Centres and requested the secretariat to facilitate this by organising regular meetings and exchanges between the Centres.

Annex III

Declaration by national PPP Units and infrastructure agencies in support of the UN SDGs

We, the representatives of PPP Units and national infrastructure agencies participating in the first session of the UNECE Working Party on PPPs, fully recognise our commitments to the UN SDGs to build better conditions for our peoples, our planet and our collective prosperity, while leaving no one behind. In this regard,

1. We understand the important role given to Public-Private Partnerships (PPPs) to achieve the SDGs as elaborated in SDG No. 17: PPP can contribute to economic growth, environmental sustainability by cutting CO2 emissions, increase efficiency, and a more socially just society by improving access of essential services especially to the socially and economically disadvantaged.
2. We also recognize that, not all PPP models are in tune with the SDGs. Many of our countries are fragile, lacking financial resources and an institutional framework and policy for PPPs, a track record of effective PPP projects, with some indeed having been affected by conflict. Our local communities struggle to afford the fees required by PPPs for services and we have to adjust and adapt PPP models to these challenging circumstances.
3. Our response – based on the solidarity that exists by our common values, appreciation of the work of PPP units, infrastructure agencies and similar public bodies, it is our collaborative wish to support each other in reaching the highest standards of excellence, to give far greater participation to women within our profession and achieving gender equality.
4. Are mindful on the following course of action in support of PPPs for the SDGs: ensuring transparency, inclusiveness, access, equity and a people-first approach:
 - (a) To work together to develop people first PPPs that contribute directly to the SDGs;
 - (b) To share information, expertise and perspectives;
 - (c) To contribute to a common pool of people first PPPs that can inspire others, supporting in this process other PPP units and embrace these new models that take PPP onto a higher plane and into a new generation;
 - (d) To support the achievement of 500 people first PPPs showcased for a common platform with private sector partners, the multilateral development banks and civil society organisations;
 - (e) To help each other to build the required capabilities to deliver such projects, by developing common professional standards, rules and procedures, aware too of the risks that can arise from PPPs, especially when they are poorly prepared and delivered;
 - (f) To fully support a zero tolerance approach to corruption in PPP procurement as enshrined in the UNECE standard on the same;
 - (g) To cooperate in an international network of public sector PPP units and infrastructure agencies that will seek to mobilise and create “one voice” behind projects that both do “good” and do well and help achieve the goals stated above; and
 - (h) To work with other partners, Regional Commissions, the multilateral development banks, and other supporting bodies from public and private sectors as well as civil society.
