Ladies and gentlemen:

A national census is conducted in Austria every 10 years. The census results are intended to provide us not only with population statistics but with valuable socio-political information on age structure (provisions for old-age pension), the labour market, the economic situation, etc.

We rely on your co-operation in compiling basic statistics for all these areas and kindly ask that you fill out the statistical forms completely and to the best of your knowledge.

The purpose of the items in this census list (e.g. the last name) is to obtain a full record of all persons in your household. You should indicate whether your household is the main or secondary place of residence for these persons. The municipalities can also compare this data against that in the Register of Residents. The Personal Data Forms are the only ones used for the statistical evaluation of the national census. This evaluation is anonymous, a fact underscored by the absence of name items on the documents which are scanned.

In accordance with § 3 para 3 of the National Census Act of 1980 in its current valid version, every household is obligated to fill out the census forms truthfully and to the best of its knowledge and belief. The information you provide us with is subject to the obligation to maintain secrecy as defined in § 4 of the National Census Act of 1980.

If you have not received a sufficient number of statistical forms, please obtain the additional forms you need from the enumerator appointed by your municipality to conduct the census or directly from your municipality (municipal administration office, municipal district administration office).

You can obtain further information on the individual questionnaires from your enumerator or your municipality.

Thank you for being so understanding and for your co-operation.

WHAT IS A HOUSEHOLD ?

A household comprises a group of people living in the same housing unit with common housekeeping. (For example, domestic staff are also part of a household if they are provided with room and board.) A household can also comprise one person living alone.

Other occupants (e.g. subtenants) who manage their own household can fill in their own census list.

As an initial step, please determine who is to be included in the census list (column 1).

WHO SHOULD BE INCLUDED IN THE CENSUS LIST ?

Persons for whom this housing unit is a main or a secondary place of residence. (This also applies if they are temporarily absent on the day of the census.)

The reference time for determining inclusion in the census list is 1:00 a.m. on 15 May 2001.

All individuals are to be entered by family, with parents listed first and then child(ren).

WHO SHOULD NOT BE INCLUDED ?

1. Persons who died prior to 1:00 a.m. on 15 May 2001 or who were born after this point in time.
2. Persons staying only temporarily, e.g. who are visiting or on holiday, at this housing unit.
3. Extraterritorial persons (foreign citizens employed at authorities representing foreign states and at international organisations) and members of their families.

INDICATION OF THE MAIN PLACE OF RESIDENCE

The essential purpose of a census is to record every person living in Austria while avoiding counting anyone twice. To this end, the National Census Act of 1980 in its current valid version provides that every person make a corresponding entry in the statistical forms at his/her main place of residence and submit a Personal Data Form.

We kindly request that you next check to determine who in your household is living there as his/her main place of residence and who is living there merely as his/her secondary place residence (column 3).

Please turn to the next page.

➤ HOW IS A PERSON'S MAIN PLACE OF RESIDENCE DETERMINED?

§ 1 (6) of the Registration Act defines a place of residence as follows:

"A person's place of residence is established at the accommodation at which he/she has settled with the verifiable intention - or with the intention arising from circumstances - of having the place serve, until further notice, as a point of reference for his/her vital relationships."

If a person has just one place of residence, this place is deemed to be his/her main place of residence.

If a person has several places of residences, § 1 (7) of the Registration Act defines his/her main place of residence as follows:

"A person's main place of residence is established at the accommodation at which he/she has settled with the verifiable intention - or with the intention arising from circumstances - of making this place the centre of his/her vital relationships; if upon taking into overall consideration the professional, economic and social relations of a person's life, this objective requirement applies to several places of residences, the person must designate the place of residence to which he/she has a predominantly closer relationship as his/her main place of residence."

The Registration Act offers the following supplementary explanations:

The "centre of vital relationships" is determined primarily on the basis of specific criteria; i.e. length of stay, location of work, education/training venue, starting point from which the person goes to work or to his/her education/training venue, place of residence of the other family members, particularly minors in the family, and the place at which other members are gainfully employed, undergoing training or attending school or pre-school, positions held in public and private corporate bodies.

Applying these definitions and explanations, the person filling in these forms must determine for each person in the census list whether this household is the person's main place of residence or merely a secondary place of residence.

If the household is the person's main place of residence, an "X" must be put in box "3a" and a Personal Data Form must be filled in.

If the household is the person's secondary place of residence¹, an "X" must be placed in the box "3b".

➤ DID YOU KNOW THAT

- The population of Austria (in today's borders) has grown by 44% over the past 100 years (from 5.4 million in 1890 to 7.8 million in 1991)?
- The smallest municipality in 1991 had just 50 inhabitants¹ while the largest² had 1.6 million?
- Children under 15 made up 24% of the population in 1971 and only 17% in 1991?
- Austria has the largest percentage of pensioners among the EU and EFTA countries. In 1991 only 1.2% of persons over 60 were employed but f.e. in Sweden still 8%.
- 30% of all commuters commuted to just 6 cities³?
³ Vienna, Linz, Graz, Salzburg, Innsbruck, Klagenfurt
- 30% of all households (some 900,000) are one-person households?

- Since 1945 more than 1.2 million housing units have been built with the support of the Housing Development Fund?
- Apartments had an average of 33 m² of area per person in 1991 as compared with 23 m² in 1971?
- 72 % of all homes had central heating in 1991 compared with only 15 % in 1971?
- The personnel at a group of just 165 companies (0.1%) accounted for nearly 23% (some 500,000) of the total workforce?
- The personnel at a group of 58,000 enterprises (25.8%) accounted for only about 7% (about 160,000) of the total workforce?

This was the situation in 1991. What will it be in 2001?
This national census will help as provide answers to these and many other questions.

EXPLANATIONS

GENERAL INFORMATION

A. A separate Housing Unit Data Form must be filled out for each housing unit. A Housing Unit Data Form must also be filled out for one-family Houses.

A housing unit is defined as a room or a number of rooms plus the adjoining spaces which form a self-contained unit and which are equipped with at least a kitchen or a kitchenette.

A Housing Unit Data Form must be filled out for vacant housing units. This provision applies also to holiday apartments in private homes even if they are used for only a small fraction of the year.

B. The following are not considered to be a housing unit:

- a) Temporary or makeshift quarters
- b) Trailers or mobile homes (not even if they are on a permanent foundation and have service hook-ups)
- c) Single rooms without a kitchen or kitchenette (e.g. accommodations at a hotel or a bed & breakfast at one's work location)
- d) Communal accommodations, e.g. in retirement homes, dormitories or nurses quarters
- e) Apartments or holiday apartments belonging to tourist businesses (not even those with a kitchen or kitchenette)

C. If there is a local unit in the housing unit (question 4), a "local unit of Employment Questionnaire" must be filled out (please request this form from your census institution or municipality!) and be handed in along with the other census forms.

D. The owner of the housing unit or a person duly authorised by him/her is responsible for filling out the Housing Unit Data Form. If the housing unit is vacant, the building owner or his/her authorised representative is responsible for doing so (e.g. property manager). The Housing Unit Data Form is to be filled out and then submitted along with the other national census forms. Strict secrecy is maintained for all individual data items in accordance with the Federal Statistics Act 2000.

INFORMATION ON THE INDIVIDUAL QUESTIONS

QUESTION 1:

If the rooms of a given housing unit are arranged one above the other on two or more floors, the floor should be indicated on which the main entry door to the housing unit is located.

A habitable attic is defined as all stories with inclined ceilings throughout (or in part of the storey) (even those with semi-high exterior walls) regardless of whether the interior work was done when the building was initially built or subsequently.

In this item, you should indicate important rooms and other facilities of the housing unit:

A kitchenette is part of another room.

You should mark WC inside the dwelling even if it is located in the bathroom.

Inhabitable rooms are defined as living rooms, bedrooms, nurseries, and "guestrooms" (for relatives, acquaintances).

Inhabitable rooms do not include storage rooms, pantries, walk-in closets, verandas, etc.

Rooms used for commercial purposes and rooms rented out to tourists which are not used by the household are not to be included here. Rooms that are rented out to boarders only seasonally and used by the household the rest of the year are to be included in this count.

QUESTION 2:

Please enter only whole numbers for the square meters; no decimal points.

The useable floor space of the housing unit is the sum of all inhabitable rooms, kitchens and adjoining rooms. For one-family houses, the floor space of hallways, stairways, etc. should be included here. Open balconies and terraces and cellars and attics should not be included in the count unless they are equipped for living purposes.

Rooms rented out to tourists only seasonally should be included but not commercially used rooms and rooms rented out to tourists which are never lived in by the household.

QUESTION 3:

The primary type of heating refers to the type used in the majority of the rooms during the main heating season (last winter). "District heating or block heating" should be marked not only if heat is provided by a district heating plant but also if a block heating plant supplies heat to several buildings within a housing complex.

If a one-family house is centrally heated and if the questions on heating were already answered in the Building Data Form (question 4), only the item "Central heating system for building" should be marked on the Housing Unit Data Form; the question regarding fuel need not be answered on the Housing Unit Data Form. Electric heating (permanently attached radiators) should also be marked for example when there is a system for direct electric heating of floors, walls or ceilings.

The primary fuel used should only be indicated if the housing unit has its own central heating or individual stove(s) heating system.

QUESTION 4:

The question regarding a local unit in the housing unit is also used to determine the local units of the self-employed who use (part of) their housing unit as a local unit: e.g. the medical practice of a physician, the law practice of a lawyer, a tailor's workshop.

The housing unit (= registered office) counts as a local unit even for the self-employed whose place of work constantly changes (e.g. self-employed taxi drivers, self-employed sales representatives).

A housing unit is not considered to contain a local unit merely because private rooms are rented out or work is done at home (not even teleworking).

QUESTION 5:

Main tenant can be based both on the Law of Tenancy and on the Act for Non-Profit Building Associations. Principal tenant should be marked for apartments in city-owned public housing, co-operative apartments (under a lease or contract of use) and for rented freehold dwellings; rent-to-buy housing units that will not be able to be purchased until a later date should also be included.

Use of housing unit by building owner includes the following situations:

- > Units in one-family houses and duplexes which are inhabited by the building owner and
- > Apartments of the building owner in an apartment house even if they are treated as rental units in the accounts.

Freehold dwellings (owner used) should be marked if the owner co-owns the property and has the exclusive right of use to a housing unit. There must be a concluded contract on the basis of the Freehold Dwellings Act between the co-owners regardless of whether or not it has already been entered in the Land Register; this item should also be marked if such an apartment ownership contract is pending.

Company-owned apartment and an apartment provided in kind: A company-owned apartment is a fringe benefit in addition to pay; with an apartment provided in kind, the use is part of the pay (e.g. in farming).

"Other legal relationship": This includes for example housing units rented as "Second apartments for recreational purposes", apartments provided to retired farmers by their children as part of the transfer of the farm, and apartments in senior citizen residential complexes which are inhabited with "right of residence for life" but not on the basis of the Law of Tenancy.

EXPLANATIONS

GENERAL INFORMATION

A. A separate Building Data Form must be filled out for each building. Buildings are defined as free-standing or - if built in connection with other structures - at least clearly set off structures covering an area of at least 20 m². In larger apartment complexes or larger apartment buildings, each staircase is defined as a separate building regardless of the numbering system used for the complex or building.

B. The Building Data Form is to be filled out by the building owner or a representative authorised by him (e.g. property management company). Strict secrecy is maintained for all individual data items in accordance with the Federal Statistics Act 2000.

INFORMATION ON INDIVIDUAL QUESTIONS

QUESTION 1:

If several private persons own the building (e.g. co-owned by married couple; building with freehold dwellings), the corresponding box should be marked.

If private and non private (= other) persons share ownership in the building, the item to check is the one that reflects who owns a majority stake in the building. If the stakes are equal, the owner should be checked who makes most of the decisions related to the building.

Other corporate bodies under public law are for example the Chambers or the social insurance institutes.

QUESTION 2:

The original allocation applies as regards the number of housing units in the building. For example, if an entire apartment was converted into an office, it is to be counted both as a housing unit and as a place of work.

The question about freehold dwellings is to be answered only for buildings containing more than two housing units: All freehold dwellings as defined in the Freehold Dwellings Act are to be indicated here; freehold dwellings which are rented out are also to be counted here.

QUESTION 3:

If mixed use is made of the building, the main use should be indicated here.

"Residential buildings" are primarily used for housing purposes.

"Residence for senior citizens, pupils, university students, workers' hostel" are examples of residential buildings for communities. This box should also be marked for buildings of a similar nature not mentioned here or buildings primarily inhabited by certain groups of people.

The item "Hotels or similar buildings" includes holiday and convalescent homes.

"Office building" should also be marked for a government administration building, bank, conference centre or a similar type of building.

"Commercial building, department store, or the like" designates buildings used primarily for wholesale and retail trade.

"Train station, airport, broadcasting station, parking garage" are examples of buildings used by the transport and communication sector.

The item "Workshop, industrial building or warehouse" also covers factories, refrigerated warehouses, and other special types of storage facilities.

"Theatre, museum, school, hospital, sports facility or the like" are examples of buildings used for cultural and recreational purposes or by the educational and health care systems.

Mark the last item in this question ("Other building") for buildings not allocable to any of the purposes mentioned here.

QUESTION 4:

Re 4.1 and 4.2: Centrally heated applies not just to buildings with an in-house central heating system but also to buildings connected to a district heating system and to those heated by a nearby biomass heating plant or a block heating plant (local heating plants).

If a building is completely fitted with direct electrical floor, ceiling or wall heating, "Central heating system for building" should be marked.

Re 4.3: The word "primary" in connection with fuel means the type of fuel used during the past main heating period (last winter). "Alternative systems for providing heat" or fuels are to be marked only if they are the predominant means of heating the building.

QUESTION 5:

This question applies only to subsequent structural measures that were carried out.

The item "Other thermal protection measures" can refer, for example, to the installation of ceiling insulation.

The item "Installation of 'alternative' systems for providing heat" should be marked if a heat pump was installed or a solar collector was set up in addition to the existing heating system (as a supplement to it) or for the provision of hot water.

However, if a new central heating system containing a heat pump was installed to replace a heating boiler, the box "Installation of new central heating system" should be marked.
