Enabling Smart Policy: The role of GRI Standards

Key reasons for using GRI Standards in policy creation:

1. Promote competitive, well-functioning market economies
2. Elevate quality of sustainability reporting
3. Share synergies with other relevant normative sustainability frameworks
4. Improve focus on what matters: materiality is at the heart of GRI standards
5. Developed and approved by an independent body through a multi-stakeholder approach
6. Enable the communication of valuable information to investors and other relevant stakeholders
7. A free public good

The GRI Standards

The set of GRI Standards includes:

- 3 universal Standards, applicable to all organizations
- 33 topic-specific Standards, organized into Economic, Environmental, and Social series

Organizations select and use only the relevant topic-specific Standards, based on their material topics
