Designing substantive and procedural features of an agreement or other arrangement: general considerations

Christina Leb
Senior Counsel, World Bank

Virtual Workshop on designing legal frameworks for transboundary water cooperation
28-29 July 2020
Substantive and Procedural Features - Definitions

“Substantive law refers to the body of rules that determine the rights and obligations of individuals and collective bodies. Procedural law is the body of legal rules that govern the process for determining the rights of parties.” (https://law.jrank.org/)

“Substantive law is all laws including common law and statutory law which deal with legal principles, as opposed to procedural law which refers to the procedure for putting law into practice.” (PONS)

Substantive Features
- Create, define, and regulate rights and obligations

Procedural Features
- Describe conduct of a formal process
Predominantly Substantive Rights and Obligations (examples)

“The Parties shall, in particular, take all appropriate measures: ... (c) To ensure that transboundary waters are used in a reasonable and equitable way, taking into particular account their transboundary character, in the case of activities which cause or are likely to cause transboundary impact;” Art 2 (2) UNECE1992

- Equitable and reasonable use
- Obligation to prevent significant harm
- General obligation to protect ecosystems
- Navigation rights
- Flood control
Predominantly Procedural Rights and Obligations (examples)

“The Riparian Parties shall, within the framework of relevant agreements or other arrangements according to article 9 of this Convention, exchange reasonably available data,...” Art 13 (1) UNECE1992

• Regular exchange of data and information
• Notification of emergencies and of planned measures
• Consultation
• Negotiation
• Stakeholder participation
Complementarity of Substantive and Procedural Features

“Watercourse States shall cooperate on the basis of sovereign equality, territorial integrity, mutual benefit and good faith in order to attain optimal utilization and adequate protection of an international watercourse.” Art 8 (1) UNWC

“In the application of [equitable and reasonable use], watercourse States concerned shall, when the need arises, enter into consultations in a spirit of cooperation.” Art 6 (2) UNWC1997
Achieving “the right” Balance

• Procedures to achieve substantive objectives
• Mechanisms to deepen substantive objectives and procedure over time
• How much detail is required?
• What to put in a treaty? What to put into more flexible instruments?
Conclusions

- Procedural features facilitate achievement of substantive features
- Substantive and procedural features complement one another
- In most cases, the same rule contains both procedural and substantive elements
Thank you for your attention!