Amendment to the list of apple varieties.

Proposal from the United Kingdom:

Following discussions on the list of apple varieties at the Specialised Section for Fruit and Vegetables meeting in April 2014 and the Working Party on agricultural quality standards in November 2014, delegations were asked to consider now this list could be reduced.

The United Kingdom proposes the deletion of the following varieties from the apple variety list within the UNECE Standard for Apples (FFV-50). This is because they are no longer of commercial significance.

In addition the United Kingdom would like to add Queen Cox into the list of varieties as a mutation Of Cox Orange Pippin.
