

Procedures to Deactivate Safety Belt Reminders

- No system exists to easily deactivate the reminder for front occupants, e.g., with a button.
- However, the reminder needs to be deactivated if an occupant is unable to wear a safety belt (due to physical disability, etc.).
- For this reason, the government issues a certificate, for each individual vehicle, authorizing deactivation of the reminder in cases where such deactivation is necessary.
 - * Certificates bear effective and expiry dates.
- A user will present the certificate to a manufacturer-designated repair service (dealer, etc.) to request the deactivation of the reminder.
- Penalties will be imposed on repair services and users in the following cases:
 - * The reminder has been deactivated illegally without having the certificate issued; or
 - * The reminder has been kept deactivated even after expiration of the certificate.
